

IT Consultant

Who are we?

Logic Speak is a growing managed IT services provider for small-medium sized businesses located or headquartered in the metro-Atlanta area. We've been in business for almost 10 years and done well, but we know there is more to do! We don't believe in stodgy value propositions or long-winded mission statements. Our mission is simple and short: to use our abilities and technology to have a positive impact on the lives of our clients and our employees. We're currently looking for a few people to join us!

What about you?

Enough about us. Does technology excite you? Are you looking for a company where your ideas are not only considered, but valued? Would it be a refreshing change to work with a group of people that you can not only work with but have fun with? If the answer is yes, we might be a good fit for you!

What is the job?

This all sounds great...but what exactly is the job? We're looking for an IT consultant to be part of our technology delivery team. Our team provides phone, remote and onsite support for our clients all located around the Atlanta area (some with remote employees or offices nationwide). We implement and support all our clients' technology, from Windows servers, Active Directory, Exchange Server, firewalls, VPNs, QuickBooks, VoIP phone systems, Macs, PCs and pretty much any other system or technology they can think of or throw at us. If you aren't familiar with a lot of the above, this might not be the right place for you...yet.

What do I need?

Well, first and foremost, you need to love to learn. Since we deal with so many different technologies at our clients, you're not going to be an expert at all of them. So...we learn a lot. We learn all the time. We get really good at what we do, and when we have a challenge that we haven't solved before, we know where to look to find the answer.

We also have to be good at and really enjoy talking with and working with clients. We pride ourselves on staying away from 'geek speak' as much as possible and not making those less technical feel dumb. They are most likely good at something we aren't too! If you are looking for a job where your servers are your best friends, you would likely be unhappy here (and your servers would miss you!).

You also have to have integrity. Not the "only when it benefits me" kind of integrity, the "even if it hurts" integrity. We believe in always being honest with our clients and each other and anything less just won't work.

After that, there are a few things that would be nice for you to have, but not all required...so don't let that scare you away:

- 4 year college degree (not necessarily in IT or a related field)
- Lots of years of experience supporting/working with the technologies listed above
- Good written communication skills (we standardize and document as much as we can)

What does it pay?

Salary will be based on years of experience and current skills. We also offer a benefit reimbursement, 401(k), communication allowance (every self-respecting IT person needs a smartphone and high-speed Internet at home) and travel allowance to cover trips out to our clients.

If you've made it this far and are still interested, we'd love to talk to you! Please visit <http://www.logicspeak.com/speak-our-language/> to tell us more about yourself and we'll be in touch.
